Streets

| # | Street | Neighbourhood | Details |
|----|-----------------|--|---|
| 1. | Acacia Avenue | Rockcliffe | Named for a large variety of trees native to Africa and Australia. In Eastern North America, 'false acacia' is often used as the common name of Robinia pseudoacacia, which is a tree with feathery leaves and fragrant white pea flowers. It is not a native tree in Ottawa but is grown occasionally in the area and has become naturalized in certain locations. A large thicket of this tree is located on Conroy Road opposite to the Conroy Pit Dog Park. Several mature 'false acacia' trees are located in the Village Green on Mariposa Avenue at the corner of Springfield Road and may be the source of the street name. |
| 2. | Acadie Court | Vanier | Named for Acadian cultural heritage. Prior to March 21, 2016, this was a disconnected portion of Ste.Cécile Street. |
| 3. | Adastra Road | Ottawa Airport | The name comes from the 1924 to 1968 motto "per ardua ad astra" meaning "Through adversity to the stars". This was previously a disconnected portion of High Road prior to the name change on November 20, 2017. |
| 4. | Airport Parkway | Ottawa Airport, Hunt Club, Heron Park, Billings Bridge | The main access road to MacDonald-Cartier International airport, it first opened in December 1972. The road and corridor were in federal ownership until it was transferred to Ottawa-Carleton regional government in 1996. It is connected to Bronson Avenue just north of Heron Road. |
| 5. | Aladdin Lane | Blossom Park | Named for the Aladdin Drive-In Theatre that operated from 1951 until 1993 on the opposite side (west side) of Albion Road and just north of Lester Road. Previously, McNaughton Street was at this location which honoured |

| | | | General Andrew McNaughton, an engineer who developed technology that evolved into radar. Neighbouring property to the north had been a World War II radar research station. |
| 6. | Alanis Private | Blossom Park | Named for singer songwriter Alanis Morissette. Alanis first appeared on television in the CJOH production 'You Can't Do That On Television' in 1985. She became a national singing star with the release of her first single 'Too Hot' in 1991 and an international star with the release of the album 'Jagged Little Pill' in 1995. Alanis' mother, Georgia had taught at St. Bernard School in Blossom Park. |
| 7. | Albion Road | Hunt Club, Blossom Park, Leitrim | 'Albion' is an archaic and now seldomly used alternate name for Great Britain that may have been derived from the 'White' Cliffs of Dover. The name was first given following the 1950 annexation for the portion between Bank Street and Walkley Road that was within the city limits. As a result of the decision to expand Ottawa airport in 1951, which would block Bowesville Road, Gloucester Township decided to upgrade and name the remainder of Albion Road. Previously and since the construction of a radar research station just south of today's Queensdale Avenue during the war years, the road was often referred to as Research Road. Prior to that, it was sometimes referred to as Long Swamp Road. It ran through the Leitrim wetland. |
| 8. | Alesther Street | Overbrook | Named for Alesther Marion Hall Cameron (née Wolff) (1875-1964) who acquired land from her mother, Esther Wolff at this location in 1913, which was subdivided in 1954. |
| 9. | Alexander Gamman Private | Manor Park | Named in memory of RCMP Constable Alexander Gamman (1892-1950) who joined the RNWMP in 1914. After leaving the force in 1933, he re-joined in 1940. On May 25, 1950, a robbery took place at the Bank of Toronto on Dorchester Street in Montreal. When Constable Gamman tackled the robber, the latter broke free and shot the constable three times in the chest at point-blank range. He was buried in Union Cemetery, Calgary, Alberta. All the streets at the Canadian Police College and RCMP stables are named for fallen RCMP officers. |
| 10. | Alexander Street | New Edinburgh | Named for Alexander McKay, son of New Edinburgh founder Thomas McKay. |
| 11. | Alfred Street | Vanier | Named for Alfred E. Wilson, one of the owners of the property at the time of subdivision in 1904, Plan 225. The portion north of Montfort Street was originally named Emily Street in Plan 245 for Emily Richer, wife of Gideon |

| | | | Loyer, owner of the property at the time of subdivision in 1907, Plan 245. |
| 12. | Alice Street | Vanier | Named for Alice Clark, daughter of Thomas McLeod and Jessie Clark. Jessie was the youngest daughter of Thomas McKay, founder of New Edinburgh. Thomas was the founder of Clarkstown before it became part of Eastview. The original plan for Clarkstown, Plan 101, dated to 1887 and included Alice Street. |
| 13. | Allen Boulevard | Vanier | Named for Ovila Allen (1895-1963) who was a home builder that constructed a number of houses on Blake Boulevard in 1952, 6 apartment buildings on Montreal Road east of Ducharme Boulevard in 1954, and was a real estate broker, President of the Notre Dame Caisse Populaire, trustee of the Eastview Separate School Board and unsuccessfully ran for Eastview council in 1948. He lost his life when his car plunged into the Gatineau River at Gatineau Point. |
| 14. | Alta Vista Drive | Alta Vista | Named after the original Alta Vista subdivision located on the north side of Randall Avenue. It referred to the 'high view' of downtown Ottawa and the Parliament buildings from the subdivision location. Previously named Churchill Drive prior to 1951 which honoured Sir Winston Churchill, Prime Minister of the United Kingdom, during World War II. |
| 15. | Altha Avenue | Vanier | Named for Altha Ann (Baker) Brown (1842-1923), second wife of William Edwards Brown (1849-1926) who owned the land at the time of subdivision in 1905, Plan 238. |
| 16. | Amberly Place, Amberly Court | Rothwell Heights | Originally Amberley Place, it is named after Amberley, West Sussex, England. It is believed that this may have been a place visited by Bert Lawrence during his World War II military service. The neighbouring village of Arundel, is also commemorated by the subdivision name, Arundel Heights where this street is located. |
| 17. | Amyot Avenue | Orléans | Named for the family of René Amyot who acquired several lots in the Hiawatha Park subdivision starting in 1938. Prior to 1971, this street was officially named Third Avenue. |
| 18. | Analdea Drive | Leitrim | Named for Analdea (Peter) Giroux who subdivided the land that became Analdea Drive. |

The farm had extensive orchards producing amongst other fruit, Fameuse apples also known as 'Snow' apples. The farm was named 'Island View Fruit and Berry Farm'. In 1899, part of the farm was acquired by the federal government for the Rockcliffe Rifle Range and specifically for target pits. However, problems quickly arose as the targets were not sufficiently distanced from the remainder of the still active farm and buildings. In an Ottawa Journal article dated September 12, 1902 (Page 7) "Mr. Snow has complained that the bullets from the ranges whiz around his ears when he goes out in his orchard." Dominion police investigated and similarly needed to take cover from stray bullets. Mr. Snow requested compensation and on December 30, 1905, the Department of Militia and Defence purchased the property. The Bareille-Snow house later became the Officer's Mess at the Rockcliffe Air Station. |

| 52. | Bégin Street | Vanier | Named for Romeo Bégin (1896-1972), Clerk-Treasurer of Eastview from 1924 until 1937. Eastview town council attempted to fire him and other town employees in January 1936 without cause to save money but at the time the town was under provincial administration due to excessive debt, which required provincial permission to hire and fire employees. He returned to his position for another year. He then became Liberal MLA for Russell from 1937 until 1948. Joseph P. Bégin and wife acquired lot 24, Plan 75 on this street in 1887 and passed it onto Romeo in 1921, and this will held onto by his family until his death in 1972. Prior to 1948, this was known as Maud Street for Maud Olmstead, daughter of Charles and Delanah Olmstead. |
| 53. | Belcourt Boulevard | Orléans | Named for Napoléon-Antoine Belcourt, who was Liberal member of Parliament for Ottawa in 1896, 1900, and 1904 and appointed to the Senate in 1907. He was president of the Association canadienne-française d'éducation de l'Ontario for 1910 to 1912 and 1919 to 1932. He fought against Regulation 17, which sought to make English the sole language of education in Ontario. He died in 1932 and Regulation 17 was modified in 1927 and was finally abolished in 1944. Prior to 1957, this street was known as Montpetit. |
| 54. | Belfast Road | Cyrville | Named for the largest city in Northern Ireland. The portion near Tremblay Road was originally named Avenue M, part of Eastway Gardens alphabeted streets. |

| | | | Previously known as Besserer’s Grove for owner Andrew Donald Besserer (1858-1936), son of pioneer Louis Théodore Besserer of Sandy Hill, and for a property high above the river with a beautiful pine grove, a wharf was built in about 1887 allowing the public to take advantage of the lovely location for picnics and sports matches. Ottawa River steamer service stopped at the wharf until 1923. Victoria was the last steamer to stop here. In 1897, the Besserer property was subdivided into park lots by the Metropolitan Loan and Savings Company and a hotel was built named Jubilee House at Besserer’s Grove. When the hotel did not prove tremendously successful, the 50-acre property was partially re-subdivided in 1901 into cottage lots. After further years of financial difficulties when the property was up for sale or auction several times, and the hotel was likely closed, a new syndicate named Hiawatha Company Limited purchased the property in 1910 and renamed it Hiawatha Park and the hotel was updated and also named the Hiawatha. The syndicate consisted of William J. Best, Aylesworth E. Shaver, and George R. Christie. At that time, a new plan to further subdivide the property and the access road from Montreal Road was known as Metropolitan Avenue after the Metropolitan Loan and Savings Company of the 1897 subdivision. The resort was named for the poem “The Song of Hiawatha” by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. The 1910 plan #288 had the hotel located at Lot 10 which is facing today’s Radisson Way between Beauchamp and Potvin Avenues [Ottawa Journal, February 12, 1910 p.14]. The newly renamed resort was also to be served by a new railway station named Hiawatha Station on the Canadian Northern Railway (opened in 1909) and sidewalks built along Hiawatha Park Road from the station to the hotel. World War I brought a fundamental change in society and quickly ended leisurely travel by steamer and quiet extended stays at country inns. This hastened the decline of Hiawatha Park that struggled to survive. In 1923 and 1924, the hotel was known as the Hiawatha Park Tea House, then it closed, along with the nearby railway |

Neither were noted on a 1925 topographical map. The property was subject to a 1926 court case which awarded ownership to Dr. James Edward Hanna who then placed the resort and hotel up for sale [Ottawa Citizen, August 10, 1926 p.7]. No sale took place, and it was in tax arrears the following year [Ottawa Citizen, May 3, 1927 p.12]. One can imagine that a derelict and unheated building would not last for long. Demolition likely took place not long after. The picnic grounds, and sports fields continued to be used in the late 1920s but without steamer service or a railway station, access was via motorboat or launch or via the road using bicycles, automobiles, buses or even motorcycles. The lack of road maintenance further hastened the resort's decline. The road was a mere 30 feet wide with two log bridges and was in poor condition [Ottawa Journal, October 10, 1931 p.32, Ottawa Citizen, June 8, 1932 p.8]. Gloucester Township finally took action by re-surfacing and widening the road to a standard 66 feet width in 1932 [Ottawa Journal, September 7, 1932 p.5]. By this time, the resort was almost dead with the last picnic noted in 1937 [Ottawa Citizen, July 5, 1937 p.5]. The main benefactors of the road improvement were cottage owners. Doctor Hanna died in 1935 [Ottawa Citizen, September 3, 1935 p.15] and the property was up for sale again in 1937 with no hotel mentioned [Ottawa Citizen, May 14, 1937 p.6]. Most of the lots in the 1910 plan were never sold to individual buyers especially those away from the river and the road. Samuel Greenberg of Billings Bridge acquired those lots in 1942 and had Gloucester Township Council cancel the vacant portion of the subdivision plan in 1943 [Ottawa Journal, April 21, 1943 p.12]. Mr. Greenberg also acquired the lot where the hotel once stood and began subdividing that lot starting in 1944. Hiawatha Park Road was truncated as the Convent Glen subdivision was built and Highway 174 twinned in the latter part of the 1970s. |
